Seana Giardini has completed her first year as a mechanical engineering master's student at Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology in Terre Haute, Indiana. Her master's thesis will employ vibration analysis during hardware installation. Having been raised in Phoenix, Arizona, any opportunity to leave the humid summer of Indiana is met with excitement. Despite the first week at altitude feeling like she was sucking through a straw every time she tried to run, she thinks Los Alamos is a pretty cool place.
